

Sorceress of Celestia

By Jahnavi K.

Once upon a time in the land of Celestia, there lived a powerful sorceress named Stella. Stella was known to be the greatest sorceress of all time, and people from all around the kingdom would come to her asking for her help. Stella was very kind-hearted, clever, and was old, but beautiful. Stella lived in a grand castle, surrounded by an enchanted forest she could control entirely. Nobody knew how she came to possess so much power, but everyone respected her with kindness and respect.

One day, a young and pretty girl named Sophie was wandering through the enchanted forest, alone. She had to go to the enchanted forest away from her village because she had to find magical herbs that were only found in that forest. She had to get those herbs from the enchanted forest because her mother was terribly ill, and she had to cure her. As she walked through the forest, she stumbled upon a small bird that's wing was broken, and it looked like it had fallen from its nest. Sophie picked it up and decided to take it with her, hoping to nurse it back to health.

As she walked, the forest seemed to grow darker, and she could feel something evil and powerful nearby. Then, out of nowhere, she heard a deep voice boom, "Who are you, and what are you doing in my forest?" Sophie looked around, but there was nobody there; just the trees and the animals. She replied, "My name is Sophie, and I am here to find magical herbs in this forest. I'm sorry if I'm in your forest; I didn't mean to trespass."

The voice laughed, "Ah, the sweet sound of innocence. What brings you here, Sophie?" Sophie was frightened but tried to sound brave. "I am here to find magical herbs in this enchanted forest to cure my mother." She answered.

The voice was silent for a moment, and then it spoke again, "Well, I suppose I'm feeling generous today. I'll let you pick magical herbs from my enchanted forest, but before you pick some, you must do something for me. I need you to bring me the wand of the great sorceress, Stella."

Sophie gulped. How could she bring the sorceress's wand! Surely, the sorceress Stella won't allow anybody to take her wand, even when she is very kind-hearted. She had heard stories about Stella, and she knew she generously gave others what they needed. But the voice had spoken, and she had no choice but to obey. She set off towards the grand castle, hoping she would succeed.

As she reached the castle, she found herself face to face with the great sorceress herself. She took a deep breath, and she knew what she had to do. She approached Stella, who was sitting on her throne, and asked for her wand. When the sorceress heard this, she was very shocked. Stella knew something was very off on that question. Nobody had asked her for her wand! When Stella asked why, Sophie explained what had happened in the forest.

Stella knew the horned wizard wanted to take over her power, so she had to come up with a plan. Luckily, the sorceress was very clever, so she quickly did. When she told Sophie what she should do about the plan, Sophie was horrified. She knew she had to trust the sorceress. Stella promised this plan would work and her mother would be cured later. As she walked back through the forest, she could feel danger nearby.

Suddenly, out of the shadows emerged a group of dark creatures. They were hideous and deformed, and their eyes shone with an evil light. Sophie tried to run, but they were too quick for her. They grabbed her and carried her off to the lair of the horned wizard, the most feared wizard in Celestia.

Sophie was thrown into a small room without windows, and she knew that this was going to be her prison forever. The ugly horned wizard appeared before her, and he told Sophie that she was going to be his servant for the rest of her life or else she would stay in prison forever. Sophie looked at him in disgust. "No!" she shouted. "You shall not be in charge of me!" "Then you shall stay in this prison forever!"

But Sophie had something special, something magical that the horned wizard had never encountered before. It was her kindness and her pure heart. Sophie refused to give up hope, as she began to sing a beautiful melody. She sang with all her heart and soul, and as she did, something miraculously happened.

The room's walls began to shimmer, and the horned wizard suddenly froze in place. Sophie continued to sing, and soon a great light covered the wizard, causing him to disappear without a trace.

Sophie had no idea how she had done it, but she knew that her voice had been the key to her escape. She appeared from the room, and to her surprise, she found herself in a beautiful garden with flowers of every color and size. And there were also magical herbs! Then, there a flash of light traveled to her as Sophie looked amazed, and the great sorceress Stella appeared, smiling at Sophie.

"Well done!" said the sorceress. "I knew you had the power of kindness and pure heart. You had such a beautiful voice!" Sophie beamed. "I believe you shall be trained to become a great sorceress, like me, or even greater." Sophie gasped. Then, she told Sophie that she had a gift, a gift that was rare and magical. "Your voice has the power to break emotional spells, such as sadness, distastefulness, anger, devastation. And yes, if you would like, I shall train you to be a great sorceress, like me." "I would love to!" Sophie replied. "Oh, and also, have you forgotten to take magical herbs to cure your mother?"