

Sarah Meets a Dragon

Imagine you are a girl with a fire breathing dragon. There once lived a girl named Sarah. Sarah is an adventure seeking person. So one day she goes on an adventure all alone in a dark and spooky forest. As she was walking she heard a loud noise "ROAR". "What was that?" she wondered. Then she heard it again "ROAR!". After that she went to investigate the strange noise. As she got closer it got louder and louder and louder! Then it stopped, then she stopped walking. Then a few moments later she heard a twig crack right behind her. She turned to see a dragon staring right at her. Then she walked up to the dragon and started to slowly place her hand on its nose. As she placed her hand on its nose it started to calm down. Then she noticed that it had a thorn stuck in its paw. So she went to pull it out, but the dragon growled at her that didn't stop her. She pulled it out and the dragon felt better. As she was walking home she had a feeling someone was following her. "Who's there? Come out and show yourself." Just after she said that she heard a twig crack and saw the dragon. The dragon looked at her with its dragon eyes. "fine you can come" Sarah said to the dragon. "Mom I'm home" said Sarah "How was your day?" said her mom from the kitchen. "Well, I had a wonderful stroll in the forest, but then I stumbled upon a dragon with beautiful blue scales and pretty green eyes." She told her mom. "That's nice" said Sarah's mom as she turned to see Sarah standing next to the dragon. "SARAH!" yelled her mother. "Yes?" "Why is there a dragon in the living room?" said mom. "It followed me home." Said Sarah. "Well why didn't you leave it outside?" said mom. "Well because it's cold outside" explained Sarah. "Well fine it can stay but first thing in the morning it's going outside whether you like it or not. Is that clear?" "Yes" said Sarah
